EVENTS

Have you ever wondered what it's like to stay in Germany after your studies?

Two former international students of RUB introduce themselves and talk about their studies and their careers in Germany. Ms. Ximena Escobar came from Columbia to RUB for her studies in Computational Engineering and she chose to stay in Germany for work after her graduation.

Mr. Bayraktar studied English, Politics and Sociology at RUB and is currently head of the programme group Landesstudios at WDR. Whether their achievements were easy or whether they had to overcome many challenges, Ximena Escobar and Murad Bayraktar explain at the Alumni-Talk.

Alumni-Talk

Time: 5 - 6 pm

Place: SSC 2/119

ARTS CENTRE

Away from uni and work stress, RUB's Arts Centre offers students and staff courses, workshops, exhibitions and performances in the four areas of visual arts, artistic design and visual media, music and performing arts.

GERMAN AS A FOREIGN LANGUAGE (DaF)

Every semester, numerous language courses are offered by the Department German as a Foreign Language (DaF), in which international students can take part free of charge. The range of courses offered includes general language courses, strategy trainings, specialised language and job-oriented courses and workshops, which are offered primarily during the lecture period but also as compact courses during the lecture-free period. Registration and placement tests for the courses take place at the beginning of each semester. Successfully completed courses are credited and graded. Further information can be found here: www.daf.rub.de.

RUB RESEARCH SCHOOL

The RUB Research School is the campus-wide graduate school for all doctoral students at Ruhr-Universität Bochum. It gives advice on doing a doctorate and supports young researchers from all faculties to make the most of their doctorate - both inside and outside the academic world. It helps doctoral students acquire new skills, network in an interdisciplinary community, and fund international research.

EVENTS

"Doing a doctorate": What does this mean and is it something for me?

We would like to explain what it means to do a doctorate after finishing your master's. If you are still highly interested in your field of study, you could become a doctoral researcher, follow your own doctoral project and gain your very own "Dr." title. We offer tips and basic information on how to do this and guide you through your preparation for a doctorate already in your master's.

You are most welcome to contact us in both German and English.
